PREFACE

In introducing this little book to the public, it is the author's desire to give the visitor a guide to, and also an idea of this beautiful spot—of its magnificence and beauty—a Cemetery without peer in the world with its choice trees and shrubbery, hills and dales, all these beauty marks making it the most select spot for burial purposes.

The management of the Cemetery is deserving of all praise that may be bestowed upon them for their excellent care of the grounds.

Greenwood Cemetery is noted all over the world for its costly mausoleums and monuments, and it is the writer's pleasure to describe the choicest of these, giving description of the grounds with numerous illustrations, and trusts that it will prove interesting to the reader.

GREENWOOD AS IT IS.

Be thou ready for the day or the hour the Lord calleth thee, thou knoweth not.

Vital spark of heavenly flame; Quit, O, quit this mortal frame, Trembling, hoping, lingering, flying, O, the pain, the bliss of dying; Cease, fond nature, cease thy strife, And let me languish into life.

Hark, they whisper; angels say
Sister spirit come away.
What is this, absorbs me quite,
Seals my senses, shuts my sight,
Drowns my spirits, draws my breath,
Tell me, my soul, can this be death?

The world recedes. It disappears, Heaven opens on my ears, my ears With sounds searaphic ring; Lend, lend your wings; I mount, I fly; O grave where is thy victory, O death, where is thy sting?

Greenwood, the city of the dead. This beautiful cemetery is noted the world over. Visitors to this great city make this hallowed spot one of the main points of their itinerary. It is beautifully situated and from many points magnificent views of the surrounding country can be obtained.

In 1837, Henry E. Pierrepont, while visiting the city of Boston, paid a visit to Mount Auburn, which was the first rural cemetery in this country. Its beauty became apparent to Mr. Pierrepont, and knowing that the city of New York was in need of similar grounds, immediately, upon his return to his home in Brooklyn, presented his views to Major Douglass, who, seeing the advantage of it, joined hands with Mr. Pierrepont in laying out what is now the famous Greenwood Cemetery.

Together they visited different points about New York, but none suited them so well as a last resting spot for the dead as the wooded hills of Greenwood, then called Gowanus Woods. After deciding upon the grounds they immediately started to organize a company, which they succeeded in doing on the 15th day of December, 1838, with Judge Hammond, chairman, and H. E. Pierrepont, secretary, The books for subscription had been opened previously on the 3d day of November, 1838. The act of incorporation was passed in April, 1838, which created a joint stock corporation under the name of Greenwood Cemetery, with a capital of Three Hundred Thousand Dollars.

The originators of the project were Henry E. Pierrepont, Major Douglass, Russell Stebbins. Joseph Alfred Perry and Henry Freeman. On the city maps it was marked from Twenty-first to Thirty-fourth streets, and from Fifth avenue to Brooklyn City line. For several years it had quite a struggle for an existence, and in the year of 1840 it looked as though it would never be able to exist. The public in general did not look upon the project with any favor, and threw every obstacle in its way. However, after a hard and bitter struggle and with the determination of the gentlemen connected with it, it rose out of the depth of despond to one of greatness and grandeur. The place was designed and laid out on plans similar to that of Mount Auburn of Boston. The starting of this cemetery marked the second rural burying ground in the country. Philadelphia soon followed with Laurel Hill.

The average price paid per acre was $756.60. making the price per lot $62.75. The ground was originally the farms of the Bennetts, Bergens and Wycoffs, and had stood in the names of these families from the first settlement of the country by the Dutch, and from time immemorial the land had been pastures and farm land. The houses of the owners principally stood on or near the shore and at the time of the Company buying the land, it had become cut up in sections and acquired by the owners at that time either through inheritance or marriage of the said three families. The names of the owners of the ground bought by the company were Winant, Bennett, Dean, Schermerhern, Bergen, Leffert, Garrett, Martense, Cook, Clarkson, Van Brunt, Jones, Pope, and Delaphine. The largest parcel of land was bought from the Schermerhorn family, and contained 85 acres, the price paid being $650 per acre. The next largest was the Sackett farm of 32 acres, the sum of $725 per acre being paid. The Ibbodson farm of 32 acres was next purchased at $975 per acre. The Dean farm of 23 acres was bought at $900 per acre, and four acres of the Wycoff farm at $600 per acre, and from that time the company purchased the adjoining property until it had acquired 474 acres, which is the size of the Cemetery at the present time.

The seal of the corporation was adopted in 1838, the device being "Memory" scattering flowers over the graves of the dead.

Few persons visiting these grounds are aware that one portion of them—Battle Hill—has quite a historical story attached to it. During the battle of Long Island, August 26, 1776, the conflict raged on and near these grounds and on Battle Hill Lord Sterling divided his forces in this great battle. For many years an old stone fortress stood here.

Greenwood owes much of its present beauty to the great care and judicious system of grading which was early adopted by the and laid out the same in 1839. An act of Legislature was passed forbiding the cutting of the streets through the grounds, which was very fortunate for the Cemetery. It may be very interesting for the readers of this guide to know that the first inclosure that Greenwood ever boasted of was a common rail fence, the posts being cut from the trees on the grounds and the rails being purchased in New York State. The present inclosure was started in 1861 and was finished in 1863, the cost being $20,725. The officers of the company at that time were Major Douglass, president; Mr. Le Roy, comptroller; H. E. Pierrepont, secretary; LeRoy, Perry, pierrepont, Stebbins and Freeman, Executive Committee. These were the first executive officers of the company.

From 1838 and up until 1843 there were 528 lots sold. To-day there are over 33,000 lots. The first lot sold for $80. The Cemetery was opened for sale of lots in August, 1842, and at the closing of the year a public consecration of the ground was held.

At this time Greenwood boasted of twenty tombs and one hundred and sixty-two interments. Some of these being removals from churchyards in the city. To-day it boasts of mausoleums, tombs and inclosures, the cost of which amounts to about one fifth the wealth of Greater New York,

There are six lakes in the grounds, and surrounding the same will be found the choicest vaults and mausoleums in the Cemetery. The lakes are considered one of the chief beauties of the grounds.

On the northern borders of the Arbor Waters, where now stands the monument of J. B. Graham, there was erected in 1839, the first obelisk, of Staten Island sienthe. It was removed later and now stands in the lot of Steven B. Munn, on Lawn Girt Hill, facing Alder Avenue, and is quite worthy of a visit.

The first interment in the Cemetery took place September 5th, 1840. It was that of John Hanna. He was buried at the base of Ocean Hill, on the western side, in lot No. 233.

At that time the grounds had not been duly opened for interments and the burial was made on the responsibility and by act of Mr. S. N. Burrill, an undertaker of New York City. It might be noted here that he was the only undertaker at that time who sanctioned the grounds for burial purposes.

The following summer Mr. Burrill constructed at the base of the hill on Landscape Avenue, at the Solvan Waters, the first vault in the grounds. It is built of ordinary cobblestones and is one of the land-marks in the Cemetery.

In the year of 1842 the Cemetery began to flourish. To-day it stands without peer throughout the entire world. To show the magnitude of its growth, there are 500,000 bodies buried here at the time of the issuance of this book.

There are seven entrances to the grounds. the main one being at Twenty-fifth street and Fifth avenue. It is very attractive, being built of New Jersey brown stone, this being the most valuable of all building stones. The style is English Gothic. The middle tower is 106 feet. high and the two side towers 90 feet in height each. There are two gateways and above these is a shield on the central part of each gable representing some biblical figures, and the spaces below are filled with appropriate Scripture scenes. Over the gateway are the beautifully executed works of art, life size, wrought in olive tinted sandstone, the subjects being, "The Interment of the Saviour," "His Resurrection," "The Raising of Lazarus," and "The Restoration of the Widow's Son." This gateway was started in 1861 and was completed in 1863, at a cost of $70,221. On the right side will be found the office of the superintendent and on the left a reception room for visitors. A little to the north of this stands the porter's lodge, commodious stables for horses and wagons used in the grounds. Here also, is the superintendent's house. The second entrance is at Thirty-fourth street and Fourth avenue. At this entrance are found the store sheds. work shops, carriage houses and stables. This entrance brings you on Sylvan Avenue, and near the single graves on the southern side. The southern entrance is at Thirty-seventh street and Seventh avenue, and enters on Summit Avenue, near the Firemen's lot. The eastern entrance is on Fort Hamilton avenue, and enters the Cemetery on Border Avenue. Around this entrance will be found some of the handsomest tombs, monuments and statuary in the world, as this is the finest part of the Cemetery. The Ninth avenue entrance is at Ninth avenue and Twentieth street. Near here will be found the reservoir, situated on Garland Avenue and Canner Path. The Sixth avenue entrance is used exclusively as an exit for funerals.

At the Fifth avenue entrance coaches may he hired at all times, which, for the nominal sum of twenty-five cents, will take you through the grounds.

The Receiving Vault is the largest as well as the finest in the world. It was built in the year 1853, at a cost of $14.933. The vault which had been used previous to the erection of this one was deemed at this time too small for continual use. The vault is beautifully situated on Willow Avenue, opposite the Arbor Waters. The entrance to this catacomb is massive, being of Trenton brown stone, and is through a deep open vestibule. The entry is 80 feet deep by 40 feet wide; this connected by similar apartments on each side which are 40 feet deep and 20 feet wide. A large spacious aisle runs through the vaulted apartments on either side. These contain the horizontal cells in which the bodies are placed and are as near airtight as it is possible for them to be, being closed up and hermetically sealed when in use. To each body placed therein is attached a metallic tally corresponding to that of the cell.

The large vestibule affords a shelter to mourners in stormy weather for burial services, when desired. There are 361 cells in the tomb, which, when built was intended to hold 1,500

burial boxes, it has reduced the holding capacity to 1,400 bodies.

The catacomb is on Locust Avenue on Vine Dell. It was first intended for the receiving vault, but being too small, it was converted into single vaults for private burials, having a capacity of twenty boules in each vault. There are 15 vaults on each side, which are built under the earth and reached by a well lighted stairway and aisle. The Cemetery will sell a single receptacle for $100, or one of the tombs for $1,000.

How strangers are hither brought to sleep, Whose home, perchance, was beyond the deep Who, seeking our shore, came but to die And here in this hallowed spot to lie.

Upon entering this beautiful Resting Place of the dead, we are immediately struck with the grandeur around us, yet, with it all, the simplicity is so beautifully blended that one loses half the feeling of greatness, as we allow our eyes to wander o'er the hills and dales and see the beautiful flowers and shrubs. As we stroll through this, one of God's acres, meditating, the feeling comes over us what a beautiful spot to rest in after earth's toils and sorrows.

Our first glance upon entering the grounds at the Fifth avenue entrance on Landsdcape Avenue, falls upon the beautiful granite shaft erected by the Greenwood Cemetery Company in memory of Joseph Alfred Perry. There is a bronze menallion, set in bas-relief in the monument, with the following inscription upon it: "The Trustees have erected this monument in

A short distance from this monument on Battle Avenue, stands the massive bronze vault of the Stewart family. Opposite this is a beautiful granite column surmounted with a figure of "Rock of Ages," in the Kauful and Smith lot. There are only two of the same figure in the cemetery. Adjoining is the granite monument erected by the City of Brooklyn in memory of its dead who lost their lives in the great theatre fire. There are 105 bodies lying here, (see cut). A few lots from this memorial on Battle Avenue, is the granite column erected in memory of Louis Bernard. Mr. Bernard, it will be remembered, was the originator of the Society Prevention Cruelty to Animals, and as he was a great lover of all dumb beasts, he bequeathed a large portion of his fortune to this Society. At the base of Battle Hill on Battle Avenue, stands the modest granite vault erected to J. W. Gerard and his wife, Helena. Their bodies are embalmed and are reclining in glass covered catacombs. In the Irwin plot is a granite column surmounted by a large marble figure, "I will arise again."

The Shelter house is at the intersection of Locust and Wood Avenues.

On Vernal Path and on Ocean Hill stands the exquisite mausoleum of granite erected by Charles T. Yerkes, the railroad magnate, which he had built for the bodies of his wife and self exclusively. (See cut).

The Withour's family plot on Southwood, near Locust Avenue, is one of the most elegant in the Cemetery.

Directly opposite this on Southwood Avenue will be found the modest shaft of granite erected by the Association for the Relief of the Respectable Aged and Indigent Females of the City of New York.

The large and massive, but plain granite column erected over Col. Abram Jabaske, whose lettering tells us, fell in duty to his country, at the battle of Daway's Bluff, Virginia, May 16th, 1864, will be found on Chapel Avenue.

Here also is the tomb of the DeGrauws, the Drapers, Phelps, Medins, and also the family vault of Valentine C. Hall, once Mayer of Brooklyn.

On Myrtle Hill, facing Myrtle Path, off Central Avenue, is the magnificent burial plot of the Griswold family.

On Lake Avenue and Ravine Path is the plot of H. B. Claffin, the dry goods merchant.

On the plateau facing Border Avenue, will be found the plot with the graves of the New York Volunteers. This is truly an appropriate spot to lay our heroic dead. Here let them sleep sweetly until the last bugle sounds.

Near here we find on Meadow and Atlantic Avenues, the hill of graves, which is for the purpose of single interments, and beautifully kept by loving and lonely hearts in memory of their loved ones who sleep alone in this hallowed spot.

Among the plethora and costly mausoleums in Greenwood, and one much sought after by the visitor, is the Stephen Whitney Chapel, situated on Ocean Hill, facing Atlantic Avenue. It is very beautiful, being built in the form of an English church, of dark gray granite, and stands on the highest point of a hill, from which a splendid view of the cemetery can be had. Its simplicity, as well as grandeur, is so blended that one forgets the latter, and it is one of the few places in the grounds that one can look upon with a feeling of absolute rest. (See cut.)

Situated on Battle Avenue at the base of Battle Hill, stands one of the most elegand vaults in the grounds, and is the resting place of the dead of T. C. Durant's family. Mr. Durant was at one time Vice-President and General Manager of the Union Pacific Railroad. The roof of the vault is of yellow glars and at certain times of the day, when the substrikes it, the reflections on the interior are simply beyond conception. In the vault are several elegant pieces of statuary, the center one representing the image of Jesus, over which two angels are holding a crown. It is upon this figure that the varied lights fall.

Situated on one of the highest points on Ocean Hill, stands the handsomest mausoleum in the country. It is that of John W. Mackey. It is of granite, and is very massive, and was built in memory of a favorite son, the cost being over $300,000. The roof is cut out of one solid piece of granite. (See cut).

The Gilsey mausoleum is another handsome piece of art, being very massive and built of choice granite. It is located on Atlantic Avenue. An excellent view of the surrounding country can be had from this point.

William J. Lyons' mausoleum, on Maple Avenue and Andronoda Path, is well worthy of a visit.

On Battle Avenue stands a granite shaft erected to the memory of George H. B. rrett, the once famous actor.

Facing Fern Avenue is a costly granite column erected in memory of Thomas Freeborn, a New York pilot. It represents the ship "John Minturn," in mid-ocean, with the figure of Freeborn upon it. This is one of the monuments that attracts a great deal of attention from the stranger.

A few feet off Battle Avenue, on Hyarangis Path, is a beautiful memento of marble in memory of G. G. Griffith Ricture, a sea captain, and represents a cottage. At the door stands the husband taking farewell of his wife. It is very artistic. The work upon this monument is well worth mentioning, and a visit. Alas, it was truly a farewell, for he was lost in midecean. Can we picture the waitings of this loving wife, hoping for tidings of her loved one, only at last to hear that he was lost and sleeping his last sleep in the silent deep?

At the corner of Fern and Atlantic Avenues stands the large and elegant marble monument of C. Palmer.

On Cherry Hill, and on Cherry Avenue stands the magnificent brown stone vault of Jasper Crasvena. It is very large and there are only two others of the same stone in the grounds.

On this same avenue, William H. Gardiner has erected an attractive marble figure of "Grief," in memory of his wife.

A short distance off Central Avenue, on Rose Path stands a small, quaint stone tomb erected to the memory of the Rev. Jasept Sanford, who was first minister to the first Presbyterian church in New York. This is quite an antique tomb.

This handsome vault was built by Mr. James F. Walsh, Jamaica Ave. near Euclid Avenue, Borough of Brooklyn, who has also erected many of the most prominent vaults and monuments throughout the country.

Directly to the rear, on Gade Path, is the old vault of Edward Willis, which was one of the first erected in the grounds.

On Central Avenue stands the large, massive granite monument erected by voluntary subscription to Lorenzo B. Shepard, a lawyer of great renown, by his admiring friends and clients.

Near the Arbor Waters on Landscape Avenue, on a hill, stands the granite shaft erected to Dixon Hall Lewis, late Senator from the State of Alabama.

Around this water stands many of the beautiful vaults for which Greenwood is noted, one of the most handsome being that of the Chambeltz family, which is surmounted by a figure of the Resurrection. At his spot one has a magnificent view of the Narrows, Liberty Statue and Staten Island. (See cut).

Very few persons visiting Greenwood are aware that in these grounds lies the body of Amelia Korsouth, wife of Louis Korsouth, the Hungarian patriot, who was banished from his country on account of his patriotism. His wife, who shared the same feelings, came with him. She always expressed the wish that her body should lie in this country until her country was free, at which time she wanted her reremoved to her native home. The mound is in the centre of the plot belonging to the Church of Our Saviour, and is located on Central Avenue. There is a plain, white marble shaft erected to her memory, and upon one side is the inscription, "Amelia Korsouth, born in Hungaria, November 18th, 1812. Died in Brooklyn, June 9th, 1800." Upon one of the other sides is the following: "Ye who returns when Hungaria is free, takes my dust along, my heart is there." Upon another side is the following: "Erected by her fellow exiles, who admired her in lite, and now mourn." On the rear of the shaft is found carved the coat of arms of Hungaria. The grave is completely covered with ivy, the original root having been brought from Hungaria by Mrs. Korsouth. She

What can be more beautiful than the quotation of Washington Irving, when he said "There is a voice from the tomb, sweeter than song. There is a remembrance of the dead, to which we turn even from the charms of the living. O, the grave, the grave, it buries every error. covers every defect, extinguishes every resentment. From its peaceful bosom springs none but fond regrets and tender recollections." What beautiful thoughts these are, and how true. And as we stroll through this, the temple of the silent, how we ponder on the mysteries of death. And yet death is the crown of life. We only begin to live after we die. Death is but a path that must be trod if man would ever pass to God. We are only passing through nature to eternity, falling asleep to a beautiful rest of silence.

With silence only as their benediction, God's angels come.

who was thrown from her carriage on Fifth avenue, on the eve of her seventeenth birthday. February 3d, 1845, while on her way to a ball. Her father spent her entire fortune in the erection of this monument. It is elegantly carved with a figure of Miss Carda. At the time of the erection it was the show lot in the grounds, and cost $45,000. Quite a pathetic story is told in a small iron inclosure a few feet from this grand and lofty tomb. There lies sleeping one whose heart is buried in Charlotte Carda's grave. Two years after her death he shot himself in her father's home, and owing to the grounds being consecrated he could not be buried with her. Silently musing we wander through the pathways, hills and dales, thinking of our loved ones gone to their long home. How we fade away suddenly like the grass, which in the morning is green and groweth up, but in the evening is cut down, dried up and withered. Truly this world is but a huge inn, and men the rambling passengers. Life, with its mysteries and sorrows, death with its joys, there we find rest, and yet it is not quitting the busy careers. Rest is the fleeting of self to its sphere. Can we not almost see our loved ones waiting on the other side, and how vividly these sweet lines come to us:

Over the river they beckon to me,
Loved ones who've crossed to the other side.
Yes, we too, will also lay down life's weary burden, and oh, how gradly would we welcome
the sleep which will awake in eternal happiness.

Of all our loving Father's gifts
I often wonder which is best,
And cry: Dear God, the one that lifts
Our soul from weariness to rest;
The rest of silence—that is best.

The beautiful memorial erected to Captain Correza, is on Dell Path.

Rest for the toiling hand,

Rest for the thought-worn brow,

Rest for the weary way—sore feet,

Rest from all labors now.

How true are these lines of Washington Irving's, and how vividly brings to our minds as we walk through this beautiful home of the dead: "The sorrow for the dead is the only sorrow from which we refuse to be divorced, every other wound we seek to heal, every other affliction to forget, but mis wound we consider our duty to keep open. This affliction we brood over in solitude." Yes, how true it seems as though we cannot give up our beloved ones and wonder why we are so chastised. Yet Heaven is not always angry when it strikes but must chastise those that He most loves. We only part for a time. It is but a farewell, but not forever. To live in hearts we leave behind is not to die. O, death, all eloquent. You only prove what dust we don't on when 'tis man we love. Death is a victory over which none can conquer, and it can be truly said that the path of glory leads to the grave. Our dead are our one comfort, our support and the only grief which is absolutely our own; and we weep in silence.

The fields to all their wanted tribute bear.

To warn their little love the bird's complain;
I fruitless mourn to him that cannot hear

And weep the more because I weep in vain.

—Gray's Ode.

One of the quaintest plots in the Cemetery is that of the old Welsh burial grounds which stands in all its simplicity alone on Hemlock Avenue, just off Battle Avenue.

On Ocean Hill, near the Whitney mausoleum is the costly tomb of Dr. Valentine Mott, which faces Atlantic Avenue, and surrounding it will be found many other handsome memorials, among them being the Kingland, Story, the Rev. D. A. Twig, and Whitehouse plots.

Thomas T. Read's elaborate column of granite is located opposite the Scribners' lot at Vine and Cypress Avenues.
